Global Landscapes Forum Bonn Annual Conference

Bonn, Germany | 22 - 23 June 2019
Rights in the Landscape

To catalyze social and environmental transformation, the GLF is structured as a co-learning movement incorporating the voices, knowledge and priorities of socially, economically and politically marginalized groups in the development of land-based solutions to climate change, lowering greenhouse gas emissions and increasing global sustainability. By recognizing Indigenous Peoples and local communities as rights-holders and bearers of solutions, as opposed to mere “beneficiaries” of proposed development and climate interventions within their own landscapes, the GLF aims to foster new forms of collaboration, anchored in a common understanding that justice and equity are essential to sustainable and inclusive development.
